

To celebrate United Artists' 90th year of filmmaking, MGM and Twentieth Century Fox Home Entertainment have teamed up with...

MOVIEUM EXHIBITS RARE OFF-SET PHOTOGRAPHY TO CELEBRATE 90TH ANNIVERSARY OF UNITED ARTISTS

The exhibition, which will run throughout September, will include photography taken from a range of award-winning and groundbreaking UA titles including Rain Man, Manhattan, Annie Hall, Midnight Cowboy, The Apartment, Raging Bull, The Thomas Crown Affair and many more. It will also include original film posters for the releases of Great Escape, Invasion of the Body Snatchers and The Last Tango.

Movieum, London's only movie museum, tells the history of the cinema and features sets, props, costumes, images and interactive displays from some of the greatest movies ever made. Conveniently situated at County Hall, SE1, the Movieum is open daily.

See www.themovieum.com for more details.

Twentieth Century Fox Home Entertainment will be releasing a second set of United Artists "Unmissable Movies" on DVD including Rocky Complete Saga, Midnight Cowboy, Rain Man and Annie Hall for six weeks at special promotional prices from all key retailers.

UA was formed by Hollywood greats Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford and D.W. Griffith in 1919, to give actors freedom of expression and greater control over their work. The artists were spurred to action as established Hollywood producers and distributors were tightening their control on actors' salaries and creative input. In 2006, UA was re-born under the helm of Tom Cruise, a Chief Executive Officer and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Inc. (MGM). The studio became recognised for quality film-making, and went on to be responsible for some of the finest films of all time attracting Hollywood's finest actors (Robert De Niro, Sidney Poitier, Marlon Brando, Dustin Hoffman) and directors (Alfred Hitchcock, Martin Scorsese, Woody Allen). It now boasts an incredible library of nearly 1000 feature films with more than 80 Academy Award®-winning classics.
